The bladder was created for one purpose, namely, a receptacle for the urine, and as such it is not liable to any form of disease except by one of two ways. The first way is from imperfect action of the kidneys. The second way is from careless local treatment of other diseases.

ONE OF TWO WAYS.

Chief Cause.

Unhealthy urine from unhealthy kidneys is the chief cause of bladder troubles. So the womb, like the bladder, was created for one purpose, and if not doctored too much is not liable to weaken or disease, except in rare cases. It is situated back of and very close to the bladder, therefore any pain, disease or inconvenience manifested in the kidneys, back, bladder or uninary passage is often, by mistake, attributed to female weakness or womb trouble of some sort. The error is easily m de and may be easily avoided. To find out correctly, set your urine aside for twenty four hours; a sediment or settling indicates kidney or bladder trouble. DISEASE GERMS IN BOOKS.

Methods of Killing Them In the New York Public Library.

Science takes the well thumbed volame dear to our ancestors, forgets all the pathos in it and finds instead germs, and most people would confess that sentiment comes a little dear when it carries typhoid or diphtheria along with it. Such, at any rate, is the opinion of the authorities of the New York Public library. For some time Dr. John S. Billings, director of the library, has been experimenting in order to discover a perfect disinfectant. Last year Mr. Hor-ton, under Dr. Billings' direction, conducted a series of experiments in the latter's laboratory in Philadelphia. A number of old patent office reports were inoculated with bacteria, and in a short time the books were full of germs of measles, scarlet fever, smallpox and other diseases.

Trials were then made of various germ destroying substances, and as a result of the experiments Dr. Billings says that he has a perfect disinfectant in the gas formaldehyde. The volume is placed in a glass or metal box with a saucerful of a solution of formalin in water and left for an hour or two. At the end of that time the vapor has penetrated into every particle of the book, and not a live germ can be found.

The process will be used in the circulating department of the New York Public library, and the patrons of the institution may ease their minds of any fear that the volumes they borrow may bring the dreaded germs of diphtheria or typhoid fever into their houses.

Bibliophiles, too, will be glad to know that the formalin will destroy the croton bug, responsible for the ruin of so many fine bindings in this country. The traditional bookworm is now a rarity in America, but the croton bug has taken its place. - Scientific Ameri-

Simple Way to Sterilize Water.

Professor Bilslik says that water may be sterilized in five minutes by adding to it bromine and that bromine may be then neutralized by adding ammonia. The river water of Berlin has been tested 200 times. After being treated with bromine and ammonia all germs of disease were destroyed, including those of cholera and typhoid. A gallon of water, it is said, may be sterilized as follows: First add to it 3 drops of the following solution: Water, 100 parts; bromine, 20 parts; potassium bromide, 20 parts, and then after five minutes add 3 drops of a 9 per cent solution of ammonia. YOUTHS' DEPARTMENT.

The Young King Alfonso of Spain-Did the Chinese Discover Americans The Terrier and the Thief.

The Spanish royal children live in an stmosphere of the most frigid and exacting formality that can be well conceived. It is not only impossible for them to be as other boys and girls are, but they cannot even enjoy anything like the amount of freedom which the children of the English and other royal families do, and, if it should be the case of the heir to the throne, so much the more rigid is the etiquette to be observed. His person is sacred, and no one must presume to address him in familiar terms, but must treat him with as much ceremony as though he were grown man and crowned king. Just imagine what a stupid, wearisome sort of thing this must be to a bright, lively child who would enjoy nothing so much as a good game with others of his own age and the opportunity of sharing his toys and other good things with them.

The little Alfonso as a small child was very delicate, and few expected that he would live to grow up, but after a time his health began to improve, and then his education commenced. Of course both he and his sisters had several masters, but there were also two English governesses, and the queen has spent as much of her time with them as

They have always commenced their day together by having breakfast in a family party at 8 o'clock in the morn-ing. Then the children have spent some ing. Then the children have spent some time in the open air, afterward going in to learn their lessons. Their education has been very comprehensive. The young king, although only 11 years of age, now speaks four languages. At 1 o'clock the queen and the children would meet for dinner, the latter again returning to their lessons for a short time. Then perhaps they would all go out for a drive together.
Since his tenth birthday the king has appeared in uniform, with his hair cut in military style. Nearly all his clothes and toys have been bought either in London or Paris, and, needless to say, the toys have been the most costly that could be procured. His fine rocking horse, for instance, was covered with the rkin of a real pony.

Did the Chinese Discover America? An interesting discovery recently re-ported is that of a rock covered with curious characters resembling Chinese, in Mexico, in the mountains of Sonora According to The Great Round World the characters appeared to resemble the Chinese so closely that a well educated Chinaman was asked to go to see the rock and give his opinion about it. He had no sooner looked at it than he declared it to be a veritable Chinese inscription. He made a copy of it and has already translated enough to show that the writing was cut in the stone about 2,000 years ago. There are ten lines of characters on the parts of the rock exposed to view. The Chinaman who translated the in scription said it was an account of a Chinese settlement that had once been established in the place where the stone was found. He said that in the history of China there was a record of an ex-pedition which had been sent to that portion of the western coast which is now Mexico. If this is true, the continent of North America was discovered journeys that were undertaken by the Chinese in the early days of civilization. It has lately been discovered that they at one time formed colonies in the islands of the Pacific ocean. In Australia evidences have also been discovered of Chinese habitation.

The Terrier and the Thief.

In many places dogs are not allowed to enter the cars or omnibuses. A little while ago a lady in Paris, accompanied by a very small pet terrier, entered an omnibus, and, not wishing to be fined or turned out, she popped the dog into her dress pocket. She had not gone very far before the man who sat next to her, and who was a pickpocket, cautiously and gently put his hand inside her pocket, in order to steal her purse or her money. He got what he little expected, for the terrier instantly fastened its sharp teeth into his fingers, mak ing him cry out with pain and fright. Of course he was found out and was quickly seized by the other passengers and handed over to the police.

> In the Doldrums. A sad and bitter memory Full often comes to me, Like chilblains in the winter Or no sugar in the tea.
> A beetle crawling down my back,
> Or, when I have not dined,
> The sight of jam and marmalade
> Will bring it to my mind.

> If you have had a penny
> And lost it down a nick
> Or stroked a playful denkey,
> Which repaid you with a kick;
> If you have chosen sandwiches
> Without a scrap of loan
> And choked upon the mustard,
> You will know the thing I mean.

But you that found a penny
When you craved a currant bun
Or had a pin about you
When your collar came undone,
Or you who sold your skates the day
The ice began to melt,
Will never know the wild regret
Or feel what I have felt.

Some people who are sorrowful Will tell their grief in full And wring your fingers till you mean, Or give your hair a pull, Or borrow things to ease their minds, Or heat on others' breasts, Or make a call at dinner time And agitate the guests.

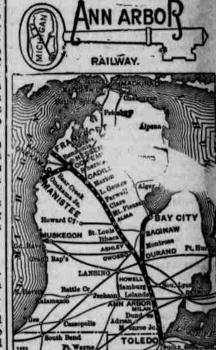

But I refrain from narrative—
The angulah is too deep—
And feed on tarts and gingerbread
Or peaches when they're cheap.
I cannot plead for sympathy
And make myself a bore.
It is a bitter memory.
I will not tell you more.
